STATE WILL NOT ASK FOR ALLEN'S LIFE AT PRESENT

If Evidence is Enormous, May Demand Such Later

HAS HOST OF FRIENDS

Montgomery County Not Partial to Death Sentences

By Dorothy Ducas
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
NORRISTOWN, Feb. 1.—(INS)—The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania will not ask the life of young Edward H. B. Allen at the opening of his trial today for the murder of Francis A. Donaldson, 2d, lover of Rose E. W. Allen, his sister.

Perhaps later, if the evidence piles enormously against the socially prominent youth, District Attorney Stewart Nase will ask that he be sent to the electric chair for the shooting of the debonaire Donaldson. But that likelihood is slight.

In the first place, Allen is a popular young man in this community, liked by the smart hunt crowd in which he moved. A host of social register witnesses was expected to appear in court to testify to his good character, the deep regard he had for his sister, and alleged indiscretions committed by the victim.

Secondly, Montgomery county is not partial to death sentences. In sixteen years only one man has been ordered to pay his life for murder. That was "Big Jake" Lehman, notorious gambler who received a death sentence last December 19 for the killing of another gambler.

The Allen case is of an entirely different order, for the prisoner is a sensitive, cultured lad who has been recognized as "different" during his three months in the gray stone jail here. The district attorney, whose first major case this will be, is unwilling to risk his reputation in demanding death for a man who is said to have committed his crime to avenge the honor of his 18-year-old sister.

Another troublesome factor in the situation is the unpredictable attitude of Rose Allen.

District Attorney Nase will call Rose to testify against the pale young man whose face is a masculine edition of the pretty debutante's. But will her story do Eddie Allen harm?

A panel of 128 talesmen has been summoned—43 women and 85 men—to furnish jurors. They will listen to 63 witnesses, 34 for the State, 35 for the defense.

The jury can return one of four verdicts, since the bill of indictment charges "murder." These are murder in the first degree, murder in the second degree, voluntary manslaughter, or acquittal. Recommendations as to the sentence may also be made.

Morris Bull Entitled To Entry in Advance Register

A new official record for production has just been completed by a cow in the herd of E. B. Morris, of Bristol, which entitles her to entry in the Advanced Register of the American Guernsey Cattle Club, Peterboro, N. H. This animal is two-year-old Daylo Ultra Lucy 255034 with a production of 9972.8 pounds of milk and 568.7 pounds of fat in Class F.

A Pennsylvania bull owned by Amos Bryon, Perkashie, has just received the honor of being entered in the Advanced Register of the American Guernsey Cattle Club, Peterboro, N. H., two of his daughters having recently completed official records.

The bull, Abbeyleix Ultra Boy 257015, is the sire of Daylo Estafette 257208 with a record of 11516.2 pounds of milk and 555.1 pounds of fat in Class G and Daylo Ultra Lucy 255034 with a record of 9972.8 pounds of milk and 568.7 pounds of fat in Class F. The bull also has five registered daughters and one registered son. He was sired by Langwater Starshoot 83961 and his dam was Abbeyleix Lucy 154506.

Twenty-Four Prizes Are Presented at Card Party

The card party for the benefit of St. Mark's School, held Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Edward H. McCurry, Venice avenue, was not only a success financially, but socially. Those interested secured 24 prizes. There were five tables of "500" and six of pinochle.

The pinochle players attaining the highest scores were: Mrs. F. Nealis, 787; Miss M. Mulligan, 773; Miss Anita E. Lynn, 763; Robert C. McCurry, 758; Miss Frances McFadden, 749. The high scores in "500" were won by: Mrs. Joseph Foster, 4930; Mrs. Anna Burke, 4360; Mrs. Joseph Wollard, 3670; Mrs. C. Boltz, 3550; Mrs. P. McGonigle, 3510; Miss Alice Hussey, 3510.

NAMED TO COMMISSION

Thomas Scott has been named a member of the Washington Crossing Park Commission in an announcement revealed at the Governor's office in Harrisburg.

In Society Murder Trial

WILLIAMS MAY KNOW HIS FATE BY TONIGHT

Few More Witnesses to Be Called, Then Case Goes To The Jury

"DOESN'T REMEMBER"

By David P. Sentner
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 1.—Harold Williams, on trial for the self-confessed slaying of his brother-in-law, William Prophet, will probably know tonight whether he is to live or die.

A few more rebuttal witnesses will be called today and then the case will be headed for the jury.

Williams, 26 year old Bucks County farmer, is charged with plotting with his sister, Mrs. Clara Prophet, prominent in religious work, the death of her husband.

The pale faced farmer testified that he may have killed the husband of his sister, but he does not remember it. He claims his brooding over the alleged mistreatment of his sister and her children by Prophet drove him into a temporary fit of insanity.

Mrs. Prophet is serving a life term for her part in the killing.

The trial was held up this morning by the swearing in of the February Grand Jury, by Judge J. J. Gordon.

After Judge Gordon had sworn in the jury, Judge Harry S. McDevitt mounted the bench and the trial was resumed.

Both the defense and prosecution are expected to begin their summations late this afternoon followed by Judge McDevitt's charge to the jury.

TULLYTOWN

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Tullytown M. E. Church will hold a meeting at the home of Mrs. Walter Strouse on Thursday evening. All members are urged to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Johnson, Lancaster, were visitors with relatives and friends in town, Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. David Allison, River-ton, N. J., and Carl Harker, Trenton, were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Summers, Sunday.

Mrs. Charles Baker, Morrisville, was a visitor at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Grover C. Wright, Friday. Helen Cole, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Cole, Morrisville, formerly of this place, who was seriously injured two weeks ago when struck by an automobile, is reported to be slightly improved. The child has been removed from the hospital to her home.

Samuel Parker and Michael MacFarland, Trenton, were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Walters, Sr., Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carlen were visitors with friends in Pleasantville, N. J., Sunday.

Mrs. John B. Yost, Frankford, was a visitor at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Elwood Walters, Jr., Main street, Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Etris Wright, and Miss Gladys Baker were guests at the home of Mrs. Wright's sister, Mrs. Foster Bates, Holmesburg, Sunday.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 1.—(INS)—Hello everybody!

Terror prevails in Shanghai—abject shivering, quaking, wild-eyed terror. Its a maelstrom of human misery, with murder, arson, and wanton destruction rampant.

The slaughter of innocent coolies in the streets of the Japanese sector of the international concession continues night and day.

The execution of confused suspects is taking place hourly in a charnel house shack in the rear of the headquarters of the Japanese naval landing party. Truculent gangs of armed Japanese civilians are robbing, looting and burning Chinese shops and dwellings.

An old Chinese woman, crying, hobbling painfully on pitifully broken bound feet, was prodded along by Japanese bayonets.

The wailing mothers, sobbing children and distracted fathers of disrupted families composed a seething mass of confused yellow humanity pouring across the bridges of Soochow Creek to escape death and destruction as rifle shots and explosions of grenades and trench mortars ring in their ears.

Ignorant, bewildered, panic-stricken Chinese grouped at intersections hysterically searching passing crowds for faces of lost brothers and sisters and children were suddenly sprayed by machine-gun fire from Japanese posts on rooftops ostensibly hunting snipers.

Their bodies are still lying in the streets.

Bullets from machine guns mounted on a Japanese gunboat lying at the mouth of Soochow Creek near the Astor Hotel cross-fired on the roof of the British Consulate, hitting the windows of the Cathay Hotel, in which I am writing this dispatch.

In central Shanghai, the defense zone supposedly under the protection of municipal police and Shanghai volunteer corps composed mostly of Europeans, thousands of families of Chinese refugees from the Japanese zone are living in doorways, on the sidewalks, and in the streets, surrounded by bags, bundles, piles of clothing, bedding and household articles.

Rickshaws, carts, wheelbarrows, motor trucks—everything that rolls—are loaded down far over capacity with wild-eyed Chinese men, women and children fleeing in terror from the Japanese zone.

Even the Chinese mayor of Greater Shanghai hurriedly fled to the French concession.

All Chinese, all Europeans—everybody—all are demanding of one another just why and for what the Japanese are continuing these measures.

Manhattan Limited Is Delayed Here One Hour

The Manhattan Limited, a special fare train of the P. R. R., was delayed here an hour last night when the locomotive became disabled at Pine street.

The train was west bound and passed here at about 7.45.

Another locomotive had to be summoned before the train could proceed and workmen had to repair the disabled engine before it could be removed from the west bound passenger track.

Alleged Hi-Jacker Held Here Awaiting Trial

Thomas McCann, Philadelphia, was brought to Bristol and lodged in the Municipal jail here to await trial as a suspect in the hi-jacking of a truck belonging to C. Lewis Lavine, Inc., Trenton, N. J.

McCann is to be arraigned before a justice of the peace and stand trial on the alleged hi-jacking charges.

ASIATIC FLEET OF U. S. SAILS FOR SHANGHAI

Sole Purpose is To Protect American Lives and Property

15TH DIVISION DEPARTS

Destroyers Follow; Terror Prevails in Chinese City

Clayton Hughes, son of H. Lincoln Hughes, Cornwells Heights, is a member of the crew, U. S. S. Chaumont, ordered today to Shanghai, China. The boat will carry the 31st Infantry, U. S. A.

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 1.—(INS)—Under full steam the U. S. Asiatic fleet sailed out of Manila Bay today for Shanghai.

"The sole purpose of the fleet movement is to protect American lives and property in the International Settlement of Shanghai," declared Rear Admiral Montgomery M. Taylor, commander of the fleet.

The Fifteenth Division, including the destroyers Peary, Pillsbury, and J. D. Ford, under Division Commander E. N. S. Robertson, was first to depart, followed by the destroyers Whipple, James D. Edwards, Smith, Thompson and Barker, under Commander McCauley.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 1.—(INS)—Japanese destroyers today sprayed the plant of the American-owned Texaco Oil Company with machine gun fire.

The Japanese machine-gunners mistook the explosion of firecrackers for the plant for firing by Chinese troops. Then they started shooting.

A United States destroyer immediately was sent to the scene to prevent repetition of the incident.

Shanghai's Mayor

This is the first photo to be published of General Wu Te-Chen, Mayor of Shanghai, whose city has been invaded by Japanese troops, who landed at Chupai, the native quarter. Mayor Wu Te-Chen had agreed to Japanese terms regarding the boycott of their goods by China, but despite that fact Admiral Shiosawa, commanding Jap naval forces, ordered occupation of the city.

KATZMAN-MACHETTE NUPTIALS PERFORMED

Rev. Percy J. Brown, Torredale, Performs Ceremony at Bride's Home

DINNER IS SERVED

A charming house wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence E. Machette, 529 Radcliffe street, Saturday afternoon at four o'clock, when their daughter, Miss Muriel Louise, was united in marriage to Helmut Reinhard Katzman, 329 Radcliffe street, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Katzman, Wiesdorf, Germany.

The ceremony was performed in a setting of palms and ferns, in the spacious living rooms of the residence, amongst a number of relatives and close friends. Rev. Percy J. Brown, pastor of All Saints' Church, Torredale, officiated, and the wedding march was played by William Schreiner, 203 Washington street, pianist, and Herman Wilben, 329 Radcliffe street, violinist.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Mildred Eva Machette, as bridesmaid, while William Katzman, leading a brother of the groom, was best man.

The bride wore a gown of white rich point lace, very long, with the skirt ending in a graceful flare. The veil was surplice in effect and had short sleeves. Her only adornment was a gold cross worn by her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Mary Louise De Morris, Winchester, Mass., at her wedding. With this costume the bride wore white satin, strap effect, sandals, and carried an arm bouquet of bridal roses tied with a large bow of white chiffon.

The bridesmaid wore a gown of pale yellow taffeta, made with a form-fitting waist, and a long flare skirt consisting of tiers of small ruffles. The neck was decollete, and the sleeves were short and puffed and trimmed with bows of turquoise blue velvet. A girle of turquoise blue toned narrow velvet encircled her waist. Miss Machette wore white satin sandals and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses, tied with pale yellow toned chiffon.

The bride's mother wore a gown of gold lace, made on long lines, with a flare skirt. With this, she wore a black toned wedding ring velvet jacket.

Following the ceremony, a dinner was served at Jones' Neshaminy House to the bridal party and guests from Winchester, Mass., Merchantville, N. J., Tacony, Torredale, Bristol, Providence, R. I., Everett, Mass., Nutley, N. J., and Reading. An orchestra provided music for dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. Katzman will make their home at 108 Fillmore street.

The bride has lived in Bristol most of her life. She attended All Saints' Episcopal School, Torredale, Bristol public schools, and was graduated from Rider College, Trenton, N. J.

Mr. Katzman was born in Germany.

Files Suit Against Motorists For Injuries He Received

Alleging that he was thrown from his bicycle on the road between Emile and Bristol, Peter Luckasiewicz, eighteen, son of John Luckasiewicz, filed a damage suit in the Court of Common Pleas at Doylestown, naming Henry Blankenhorn, 7915 Craig street, Philadelphia, as the defendant.

The suit, which claims damages for $6,000, is the outcome of an automobile collision in which the defendant is alleged to have run into the youth on July 20, 1930.

ORDER EVACUATION

Shanghai, Feb. 1.—Evacuation of all civilian Japanese from Shanghai was ordered today by Japanese Consul General Shigemitsu. Eighteen thousand Japanese including 300 women and children had complied with the evacuation order at the time this dispatch was filed at 8.25 p. m. The order was the direct result of failure of Chinese and Japanese authorities to agree upon a proposal for withdrawal of troops to the neutral zone.

BOTH PROTEST AGGRESSION

Washington, Feb. 1.—The grave concern which Washington feels over the situation at Shanghai has been lightened somewhat by the forthright manner in which Great Britain came to the front supporting the American policy. Jointly the two English speaking nations have made repeated protest against Japanese aggression in treaty breaking, jointly they are rushing reinforcements of men and warships to the scene, and jointly, it is believed, they will continue their efforts to restrain Japan from excesses which have shocked the world just as did Germany's ruthless violation of Belgium neutrality in 1914.

FOUR AUTO DEATHS

Eaton, Feb. 1.—Four automobile fatalities were chalked up here during the week-end. The main outstanding death was that of Walter Williams, 56 year old manager of the Hotel Easton. Williams was driving along the Bushkill Valley road, just north of the city, on Sunday, when his car went off the highway and tumbled into the Bushkill Creek, drowning him. It was believed at first he had suffered a stroke and lost control of the machine. An autopsy performed last night, however, proved death was due to drowning.

WOMAN SHOT; NOW DYING

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 1.—The body of Howard R. Stewart, 56 year old real estate man of White Plains, New York, was in a morgue here today while his invalid wife lay dying in McKinley Hospital, victims of a supposed attempted murder and suicide. Stewart, police believe, was bankrupt and unable to pay for his wife's care at a hospital any longer. On a lonely road, as police recorded the incident, Stewart pulled a revolver from his pocket and shot his invalid wife as she lay on the rear seat of his automobile and then turned the gun on himself. The bodies were found by Patrolman Richard Bretell, five hours after Stewart had called at the hospital here to take his wife for an airing.

WEST FUNERAL TO BE HELD HERE TOMORROW

Services in Zion Lutheran Church for One of Its Organizers

LIVED HERE 16 YEARS

The funeral of George B. West will be held from his residence, 722 Wood street, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with further services in Zion Lutheran Church at 2.30 o'clock.

Mr. West suffered a stroke Saturday, shortly before noon and was found dead in the kitchen of his home by his wife and daughter-in-law. He had been at his work in his blacksmith shop and complained to a customer of not feeling well. He left the shop and went to his home which he entered at about 11.55. His body was found against the kitchen door at 12.20 when his wife and her daughter-in-law returned.

Mr. West was a native of Stroudsburg and was born there August 17, 1868. He and his family came here to live June 22, 1916. He is survived by his wife, three sons, one daughter, three brothers and two sisters. He was a member of Mystic Circle and took a very active part in church affairs.

The deceased was one of the founders of the Zion Lutheran Church here and had never missed a session of the Sunday School since its organization. It is believed that his attendance record had been perfect for nearly 20 years.

Interment will be in the Bristol Cemetery.

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 1.—Bucks county's housekeeping bill for 1931 showed that economy was practiced in accordance with the times, for a total of $68,630.97 was sliced off the total bill of the year before. During 1931 the total housekeeping bill in Bucks County was $632,838.39.

The balance in the treasury at the close of the year 1931 amounted to $145,496.25 or exactly $30,245.38 more than at the close of the year 1930.

The annual county statement was released for publication today after the auditors had placed their "O. K." on it. Careful conduct of affairs by the retiring board of County Commissioners including Ernest H. Harvey, William S. Schlichter and Clarence E. Benner made possible the fine balance turned over to the County Treasurer at the start of 1932.

The books of the county were audited and approved by Henry M. Kramer, John H. Freed and Horace G. Mitchell, and attested to by William H. Murphy, Clerk.

During 1931 there was a decrease of $33,834.99 in bills paid for bridges and maintenance of bridges and another decrease of $61,509.12 for bills paid for damage and maintenance of roads in the county. This is all due to the road and bridge building program of Bucks county during the past ten or fifteen years, and the fact that the state has taken over numerous roads and bridges.

There was also a decrease in 1931 in officers' salaries and expenses amounting to $2,730.13, and a decrease in the amount paid out for soldier burials amounting to $706.39.

Every other department of the county's housekeeping expenses showed a slight increase but in spite of that fact the Treasury balance is larger than ever before and the total bill is considerable less than in 1930.

The largest increase in any department of the county housekeeping department was for prison and other institutional expenses, the total amounting to $36,826.74 in 1931, an increase of $4,574.61 over 1930. Court costs in 1931 showed an increase of $3,823.70 and a total of $63,683.19. The bills paid to charitable institutions in 1931 amounted to $100,062.37, or an increase of $3226.05 over the previous year.

The total amount of officers' salaries and expenses last year amounted to $98,491.30, the expenses for the County Commissioners' office being $25,641.16. Expenses in other offices were as follows: County Treasurer, $11,132.61; Recorder of Deeds, $14,132.55; Register of Wills, $4800; Orphan's Court, $5221.10; Quarter Sessions, $4497; Prothonotary, $7,055; Sheriff's office, $7,952.36; Auditors, $244; other salaries including inspector of weights and measures, stenographer pay and service of accounts, $4250.

It cost $66,000 for appropriation to the Bucks County Home in 1931 while the second largest item in the total bill for charitable institutions amounting to $100,062.37, was $21,486.48 for care of inmates at the Norristown State Hospital amounting to $21,486.48. Other items in this list were Allentown State Hospital, $8,381.36; Wernersville State Hospital, $3861.89; Fairview State Hospital, $2301.87; expenses of fifty-five commissioners in lunacy, $1126, and a number of other items.

The largest item of the court cost bill of $63,683.19 was $24,383.29 for court officers' pay and $16,162.89 for grand and traverse jurors. Criminal costs paid by Bucks county in 1931 amounted to $11,576.13. Transcribing testimony in 1931 amounted to $8,975.60 and meals served to jurors cost $432. Liquor analysis and testimony cost $1,137.15.

The total increase in Court House expenses amounting to $35,250.49 was $4,099.71, the largest item being $10,697.20 for the operation of the plant and $9,332.29 for maintenance of property.

It cost $36,826.74 for prison and other institutional expenses in 1931, including $10,626.18 for operation of the county prison plant, $5,123.56 for maintenance of property and $2,883.83 for supplies for prisoners. One of the largest items in this classification is $6,965.54 for support of prisoners at the Eastern State Penitentiary. Another $3,324.74 was spent on prisoners at the Pennsylvania Industrial Reformatory and $2,199.16 for inmates at Glen Mills Reform School. Medical attention to prisoners last year cost $1,122.80.

Road damage settlements amounting to $26,866.58 was paid last year in the total amount of $77,849.18 for damage and maintenance of roads. A total of $11,225.91 was paid for county aid for improvements to roads in townships.

Coroner's bills last year amounted to $2,287.

Listed in the total bill of $82,892.90 for bridges and bridge repairs was an item of $26,255.97 for general smaller bridge repairs. The county's share of bridge over canal in Morrisville was (Continued on Page 4)

TO PLANT NUT-BEARING TREES

The American Forestry Association is sponsoring a rather unique project among the Boy Scouts of America. For fear that most of the native species of nut-bearing trees may eventually disappear from the country, the association has raised a fund of $10,000 to be used in financing a nation-wide nut tree planting program by the Boy Scouts.

"The great demand for walnut, hickory and wood from other nut-bearing trees, together with the clearing of land for farms, has reduced the once abundant supply of these species to a point threatening their extermination," says the association foresters.

The plan as outlined calls for the collection of nuts from native trees in various localities. These will be sent to the department of agriculture experimental farm at Arlington, Virginia, for sorting and redistribution to various troops throughout America. The boys will be requested to raise the seedling trees in favorable plots so that they may be taken up later and planted throughout their district.

This new movement should create considerable tree planting interest among the Scouts and make possible a new source of supply of seedling nut trees for those who have the land for planting.

LAWS

"Disrespect for law" and "disobedience to law" are mentioned today as though horrendous creatures of modernity, unknown to our ancestors. This day and generation are condemned for bringing them into being, when they should be consoled for inheriting them from the past.

Did the early colonists respect the tax laws? Did the pioneers honor the mark that preserved for masts for England's navy the tall trees of New England? Were the laws against furnishing Indians with "fire water" obeyed? Were not the best people, the patriots, of the New England colonies engaged in smuggling in goods upon which duties were imposed? Colonial court records reflect widespread disobedience to law. And what of the Whisky Rebellion, the slave laws of Civil war days and the conservation statutes?

So when the 1932 model of American chooses which laws he will obey and which he will disobey he is following a course of behavior not far different from that followed by his father, grandfather, great-grandfather and so on. And for this had example they have set him he cannot, out of respect for the dead, condemn them.

To understand the present problem it is necessary to understand the attitude of the American people toward law, an attitude springing from a great variety of historic causes, among them being the pioneer spirit, the Puritan's objection to administration, the Whig tradition of a right of revolution, the conception of natural rights and others.

The mark of a good party is a ditto mark.

The only successful substitute for luck is work.

Miss Elizabeth Fish, Parkland, who has been spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. Le Roy Wildman, will spend the remainder of the winter at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Cooper, Pineville.

John Carter has been accepted as an applicant for entrance into the Navy, and has been placed on the waiting list.

Mrs. M. Anna Smith, Newtown, left recently for St. Petersburg, Fla., where she will spend the rest of the winter. Mrs. Smith, widow of Dr. Charles B. Smith, Newtown, as Miss Annie Stackhouse, was a resident of Fallsington until her marriage.

Miss Tacie Kutterer was hostess to a number of her friends at the home of her sister, Mrs. Joseph Palmer. Miss Kutterer was a former teacher in Fallsington.

Miss Marie Lyons, Trenton, was an overnight guest of Miss Eleanor Hendley, Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kloppenberg and son, Elwood, spent several days with Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Kloppenberg, Brooklyn.

The senior class of Trenton High School gave a play two nights, called "The Queen's Husband," in the school auditorium, under direction of Harold A. Van Kirk, Fallsington, who is a teacher in Trenton.

Mrs. Charles M. Headley was a week-end guest of Miss Katharine Wildman, Langhorne.

Miss Jennie B. Moon is spending several days in Philadelphia as the guest of Mrs. Mild Fowler.

The house formerly owned by Charles and Susan Jenkins is being torn down.

SYNOPSIS

Young and handsome Ted Radcliffe arrives at Verdi, a Mexican border town, as the search for "El Coyote," the notorious masked bandit, is at its height. "El Coyote" avenges the outrages perpetrated by the wealthy and powerful Paco Morales against the peons. Ted learns from Bob Harkness, his late father's friend, that Morales was responsible for Radcliffe's father's failure, but Bob urges him not to make an enemy of Morales as he has other plans. Ted is attracted to Morales' beautiful niece, Adela. "El Coyote" sends his lieutenant to urge the ranchers to join him in overthrowing Morales. Jito, Morales' ward, warns him he will lose power unless "El Coyote," the notorious masked bandit, attend a fiesta at Morales'.

CHAPTER XIV

Bob drove on a few feet to the very edge of the mesa. He pointed down. "Coming to more agreeable things, there's the hacienda of Señor Morales."

Bob had stopped the car where the mesa sloped abruptly down toward the valley. Ted's lips parted in an exclamation of pleasure and surprise. It was as if in that world of sterile sand and cactus, one had suddenly unrolled a toyland where green trees waved and the homes of men clustered about a wide, slow-flowing river. From somewhere out of the Mexican foothills a stream, twisting and twining upon itself, had at last broadened into this wide valley. On its farther bank lay little dots of red-tiled roofs and yellow adobe walls. There must have been a dozen low buildings sprawled about in Spanish design. White-barked eucalyptus trees and feathery tamarisks cast long, cool lines of shadow across the ground and splashed the walks leading to the main building. Circling the building lay a wide carpet of lawn, looking strangely cool and alluring in that world of dazzling sand, and about it all a high forbidding wall.

Upstream a tiny village straggled along the water's edge. Beyond, nothing but desert, with its ascending heat waves shimmering in the sun to where, far beyond, the purple hills rose, mysteriously remote and unfathomable. Somewhere out there, Ted was thinking, El Coyote had his being. Somewhere out there, laying his plans, gathering his men, and in the night swooping down upon the valley. And here, before him, lay the stronghold of the enemy. A horseman trotted down to the river bank nearest the ranch-house.

"Siesta time," murmured Don Bob. "Otherwise we would see more activity. Men come for miles to this yearly feast of Morales. There will be music and dancing, probably much drinking, horse racing, and all the feudal remnants of a dead age."

"You don't seem greatly in sympathy with it."

"I love color and melodrama and romance. You'll see it all here. But it saddens me a little too. For sooner or later—perhaps sooner than we know—this well-ordered yesterday world of theirs will be as dead as the days of the old Spanish conquerors. Out here Morales has planned that everything conspire to take you back to those days. The careful courtesy, the great leisure, the very way he lives and thinks. And it is very beautiful and colorful and—quite impossible."

Leaning forward Don Bob threw the car into gear. "Now for some skilful herding of this eight-cylinder stallion, lest worse things befall."

Slowly they bumped along the narrow road over the mesa's edge.

This house is yours, señores, burn it if you will. Morales' white sombrero touched the ground. The Americans bowed in response to the old Spanish phrase of welcome. In wondering surprise Ted looked about him. It was, as Bob had said, a place of surpassing loveliness—a few acres of paradise in the heart of the great desert.

Before them towered a black iron gate, and beyond it the shadows of tall trees touched the yellow walls and the red-tiled roof of the old hacienda. It rambled, with low eaves and jutting wings that may have been added as successive generations of its masters grew in wealth and importance. Beyond were a dozen smaller buildings, each one a model of the same artistry, all grouped under the high protecting wall that seemed to fix so firm a line between this shaded fragrant spot and the blazing desert outside.

Morales watched Ted's eyes. "You like it, no?"

"It's beautiful. You've created a fairyland."

Again the Spaniard bowed. "You are most kind. You may forgive, then, our shortcomings, if out here we lack some of the comforts that to you of the East have become necessities."

Ted looked up at the vine-covered walls and the immaculate gardens. "It seems like some painting from an old story. I feel as if I had stepped back a couple of centuries."

Morales smiled in delight. "You feel that. I am glad. It is what I should most like—to preserve a world out here as our grandfathers knew it. I try to keep the present at bay. The present—it is so uninteresting, so unlovely, no? You see, even for my servants I insist on the old costume of the country." His hand indicated the peon girl who passed them in a blouse of gay colors, strings of spangles about her neck and ankles. "I also," he said with a meaning smile, "retain another old custom—and he nodded to a small one-room building with barred windows and heavily grated door. "My private prison," he added. "But come in. A glass of Spanish wine will take the taste of alkali from your throats."

Up the long, flower-bordered path he led them, through an oak-hewn door, and into the fragrant obscurity of the house. Beyond the tiled floor extended a broad patio, and in its center the waters of a fountain fell, cool and silvery. Palms and rare plants were growing within this restful place, where there seemed to be no sound but the soft falling of water and the lazy chirping of two brilliantly colored birds.

From behind a high wicker chair a thin column of cigarette smoke curled upward. Helplessly Morales shrugged.

"That is one modern motif I have not succeeded in banishing. She will smoke, no matter what I do. Your generation, Señor Radcliffe, is a very ruthless one."

From behind the chair a languid voice reached them. "You would come in the siesta hour, both of you, and all morning I tried to look my prettiest. Now you burst in at the time when girls' noses are shiniest and hair mussiest. Come over here, Señor Radcliffe, and tell me why you've kept us waiting for long hours."

Radcliffe found himself looking into her smiling eyes. "That nice," he announced solemnly, "has never been shiny in all its opulent life."

She held out her hand and laughed.

Wonderful person, to think of a speech like that after miles of desert. Bob, where did you big gringo learn his serious and convincing way of telling the most outrageous lies?

"It's probably a gift."

"Si, it would have to be. He is much too young ever to have learned it."

Morales was busying himself with a long, thin bottle.

"Of this I draw the cork myself," he explained over his shoulder. "One must combine love and care in opening old wines."

To the men he handed glasses of the straw-colored fluid.

"It is the sunlight of Spain, gentlemen. The warmth and sunny afternoons of some Spanish vineyard."

They raised their glasses toward Adela. Don Bob sipped appreciatively.

"That is worth many miles of desert road."

"Wine," responded Morales, "is it not one of the divine gifts? The Yaqui Indians who live here in our foothills have a legend that wine was given to the world by a goddess who happened to fall in love with their chieftain. It may be true. Why not? Perhaps goddesses become human when they love, just as mortal women become divine. That is why no man should fall in love. A man should only allow himself to be loved. And yet, señores, are not life's richest sources of amusement the love of women and the domination of men?" The Spaniard poured out another glass of wine.

Abruptly Ted broke the long silence. "Señor Morales, you knew my father. When I came out here I thought he had died a rich man. Don Bob has told me my father was practically a pauper. I myself am penniless. You probably knew this already."

For a moment Morales hesitated. "Señor Radcliffe, it would be folly to pretend I did not know. I realize too what this must mean for you. It would be scant courtesy to ignore it. For my niece and for myself I can only say we are most sorry. Whatever I can do to help you, if anything can be done, I shall do gladly."

Radcliffe suppressed a start of surprise. Here was either sincerity, pure and simple, or deceit marvelously well acted. He looked toward Don Bob, who sat apparently unheeding, intent on the enjoyment of his wine.

"I'm glad of your directness," Ted answered. "I, too, will be direct. It has all come as a surprise, complete and very sudden. But it has occurred to me that you may know the cause of my father's disaster."

The Spaniard turned the glass in his long fingers. "Of course, you will understand, Señor Radcliffe, that your father's work and mine were quite distinct. It is true our interests often coincided, for a time, especially in enterprises that fitted in with what we both were doing. Thus, we both controlled the North Mexico Railroad in order to get its special shipping rates. I was interested in his irrigation scheme, and we operated for a time, one might say, as partners."

"That was six years ago?"

"And in the buying of the land for his great irrigation plan, did you do that together?"

"Si."

"You held controlling interest, Señor Morales?"

"I held a little over half—that was the agreement."

Members of 12-B Take Active Part

Several members of the 12-B class are taking a lively interest in debating and spelling.

Those out for debating are: Mildred Hellyer, John McCarthy, Hadley Springer and Margaret Owens.

The following are members of the spelling club: Betty Hill, Esther Reynolds, Thelma Wallace, Mildred Hellyer and Margaret McCarthy. The best spellers from this club are chosen to represent Bristol High in the annual spelling contest held March 2nd. The contest was held in March at the Peirce School of Business Administration.

The low seniors out for the respective basketball teams are: John Dougherty, Franklin Fine, Robert Wright and Thomas Barrett; Thelma Wallace, Esther Reynolds, Betty Hill, Rita Barnfield and Sue Hutchison.

New Schedule Completed

The football schedule for the 1932 football season has been completed by Coach Townsend and Manager Ralph Cahall. There are ten games to be played this year. Fallsington High is a new team on the Bristol schedule; the rest of the teams played games with the Cardinal and Gray eleven last year.

The schedule is as follows:
Sept. 23, Jenkintown, away;
30, Mount Holly, away; Oct. 7, Langhorne, home; 14, Newtown, home; 21, Doylestown, away; 29, Lansdale, home; Nov. 4, Fallsington, home; 11, Springfield, away; 19, Allamuchy, home; 21, Morristown, home.

A Good Example to Follow

Complaints had been made by students that there were no assembly programs. The 8-2 girls decided that it was up to them to do something about it.

On Wednesday morning there was a program sponsored by the 8-2 girls in assembly. The following numbers were given:

Piano duet, Dorothy Krames and Eleanor Ridge; toe dance, Phyllis Wiesner; song, Gwendoline Adams, Barbara Molloy; acrobatic dance, Marjorie Snook; song, Marie Russo, Genevieve Cherubini; poem, Josephine Agresta; song, Anna DeLuca; song, Jessie Bell; tap dance, Rose Marcello.

The program, which proved very successful, was entirely directed by the girls. Edna Fells accompanied at the piano.

Banquet To the High Senior Girl Reserves

On January 19, the Girl Reserves of Bristol High School gave a farewell banquet to the senior members of the organization. The room was attractively decorated in the club's colors, blue and white. The tables were arranged in the form of a triangle, which is the symbol of the Girl Reserves.

After all had enjoyed a delicious supper, the exercises were held. The incoming president, Ruth Pickering, spoke in behalf of the Girl Reserves in wishing the seniors all success in life. The members of the senior class and the officers were introduced in turn. Each told of her work in the club and of the plans which are to be carried out during the coming semester.

During the course of the evening a beautiful bouquet of roses was presented by the graduating class to the adviser of the club, Miss Rachel Bartine. This small token was presented in appreciation of the untiring help which Miss Bartine has given to the organization during its existence in Bristol.

The members of the senior class who have been workers in the Girl Reserves are the Misses Marie Buchler, Marjorie Pagan, Mary McAuley, Lillian Popkin, Mildred Crudo, Maude Griffe and Esther Lunderbough.

Many Changes in Organization

Today marks the first day of the new semester and brings drastic changes in the organization of home rooms and classes.

The 8th and 9th grades have been reorganized in such a way that every section will be made up of an equal number of boys and girls; hitherto each section has been unmixed. This regrouping is necessary because of the fact that under the old scheme the time allotted to home economics and shop work proved unsatisfactory. The grouping is not according to ability, although changes from one section to another have been made when it was thought best for the welfare and best interests of the pupils.

In the tenth grade there have been three commercial groups; this semester those groups will remain the same except in English and history classes, where they will become two groups.

We are sorry to lose Miss Harrison from our group. She will take Miss Lenz's place at Wood street.

Place Your Order Now

The next issue of "The Rambler," the high school paper, will be a Senior number. Those who wish full details about Senior history and events will find all the information they need in the issue which will be ready for distribution on Wednesday, February 10. It will be three times its usual size and will contain pictures of the Seniors.

This coming Wednesday will be the last half day of school for the year. The class which the faculty has attended every week since September will end, and the school will resume its regular schedule.

BRISTOL CAGE TEAM LOSES TO MORRISVILLE

The Bristol High cage teams were taken into camp Friday night by the Morrisville squads on the latter's court, when the local boys were handed a 20 to 11 setback, while the Cardinal and Gray girls came out on the short end of a 22 to 18 score.

Both Cardinal and Gray teams were ragged on the defense, poor in passing and erratic in shooting. However, the games, as a whole, were thrilling and sensational due to high speed at which they were played.

In the boys' game, Pine was high point gatherer for the visitors with a duet of double deckers, while Scullin looped the cords for two twin-pointers and a duet of fouls for Morrisville.

The girls' game saw Enid Whyatt as high scorer for the Cardinal and Gray with fourteen points to her credit, while Gaston gathered the scoring laurels for Morrisville with a sextet of field goals and a quintet of fouls.

Tomorrow night, Cardinal and Gray quintet and sextet play Southampton on the local court. A dance will be held after the game and music will be furnished by a well-known orchestra.

Lawrence J. Winder, Jr., Takes Up Aviation

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Feb. 1.—The entrance of Lawrence J. Winder, Jr., of Andalusia, Pa., into Parks Air College of East St. Louis, Ill., the world's largest civilian flying school, was announced today by Oliver L. Parks, president.

Winder has enrolled for mechanical instruction preparatory to qualification for a United States Department of Commerce license as an airplane and engine master mechanic. He will remain at Parks Air College for approximately one year during which time he will receive thorough training in the building, maintenance and repair of airplanes and engines. Included in his subjects are aerodynamics, aircraft metal working, woodworking, welding and brazing, airplane overhaul and repair, rigging, etc. He will spend 16 weeks in the Master Mechanics School on high speed motors. During the course of his instruction he will receive 22 hours of flying time and necessary ground school work. His engine instruction will include a practical and theoretical study of all modern equipment.

Winder is 24 years old and is the son of Dr. and Mrs. L. J. Winder, of Andalusia. He attended high school in St. Joe and business college in Philadelphia previous to his entrance into Parks Air College.

Although Winder hasn't announced his plans for the future, it is understood that he will return to his home in Andalusia before taking over his duties as an airplane and engine master mechanic.

Girl Who Formerly Lived Here is Given A Surprise

Mrs. Ann McDermott, Tacony, formerly a resident of Beaver street, arranged a surprise birthday party in honor of her daughter, Elizabeth, at their home Saturday evening.

Elizabeth, who had been to the "movies" returned home and found friends awaiting. She was completely surprised. The guests showered her with gifts, and after Elizabeth had opened and admired each one, games were played. Prizes were awarded to Charlotte Rathke, Elizabeth Herd, Doris Dibeler and Irene Sharp.

The guests were invited to the dining room for refreshments. In the center of the table was a cake with red candles. Candlesticks holding red candles, red baskets filled with candies, red snappers and whistles for favors, made attractive decorations for the table.

Those present: Irene Sharp, Elizabeth Price, Nan Townsend, Charlotte Rathke, Dorothy Downing, Miss Roberta Pearson, Mrs. S. A. Pearson, Carl Foell, Bristol; Mr. and Mrs. T. W. McNally, Mrs. Anna McDermott, Elizabeth McDermott, Edgar McDermott, Tacony.

Farewell Party Given Here for the VanDorns
Mr. and Mrs. Lawson were the hosts at a farewell party tendered Mr. and Mrs. Van Dorn, at the former's home, Hayes street.

Seven games of pinocle were played and prizes awarded, after which a luncheon was served. Music, singing and dancing also amused the guests.

Those present: Mr. and Mrs. Seamon, Mr. and Mrs. Whyatt, Mr. and Mrs. Morgan, Mrs. Gratz, Mrs. Plank, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. Hickman, Miss Hickman, Mr. Bozner, Mr. Margerum, Mrs. Walters.

LIVERMORE AT CONFERENCE
Scout Executive William F. Livermore, Jr., will not be at county headquarters, Radcliffe street, today or tomorrow. He is attending the regular bi-monthly conference of Scout executives at the University Club, Philadelphia. National and regional speakers are on the program, for lectures on topics relative to county Scout programs. Mr. Livermore will be at the Bristol office on Wednesday and Saturday.

The total bonded indebtedness of Bucks County at this time is $160,000.

Meet Me Tonight in Dreamland

This dramatic picture shows Tommy Loughran on the canvas just before the referee started the count that ended his battle with Steve Hamas at Madison Square Garden, New York. Though Loughran entered the ring a 8 1/2 to 1 favorite, he didn't have an earthly chance from the opening gong. A terrific left hook to the jaw sent him to the floor in the second round to end the fight. Boxing experts say it also ended his career as a first-class heavyweight.

THIS way, folks, for the thrill of a lifetime! Get your tickets to Lake Placid if you want to be in on the curtain-raising event of the 1932 Olympics!

It will be staged Saturday at the famous New York State winter resort. The boys of all nations will start off the international meet with bobsled runs down the steep incline of Mt. Von Hoevenberg. The experts at this spine-shocking sport can zip over the course at seventy miles an hour.

Bobsledding as a big-time sport is only a little over thirty years old. It was originated by a group of excitement-eating young Englishmen in one of the famous Swiss mountain resorts. They started using the heavy, clumsy sleds which the natives used to haul food supplies to the hotels. Gradually these sluggish contraptions evolved into the sleek, streamlined, low sleds with steering devices that we have today. Later the fast bobsleigh courses were built.

The first run, it is believed, was laid down at historic St. Moritz and the idea swept into favor in other northern countries. Today both sleds and courses are built with the finest mathematical precision. They have to be in order to allow the joy-riders to safely go more than a mile a minute. The first of the architecturally perfect courses was the famous Cresta Run, a mile and a quarter in length.

It was only last year that the Van Hoevenberg course was perfected and there is only a small group of American adepts at the sport. The rate of descent in some places is as high as fifteen per cent. Harry Homberger, pilot of the Saranac Red Devil team, has averaged over forty-seven miles an hour for the entire length, exceeding seventy miles per hour on the straightaways.

All the racers wear headguards, similar to football helmets, hob-nailed boots, gauntlets and heavy jerseys. The treacherous turns on the course explain why. The track itself, from a width of six feet on the straight runs, extends twenty feet and over on the curves. Its ice foundation is covered by well-packed snow. A road paralleling the run from top to bottom has been built especially for the impending meet.

From this and other places of vantage thousands may enjoy a perfect view of the proceedings. At each of the major curves grandstands have been erected for those who want a closeup of the lads plunging through space over the ice.

Well, we'll see you there. We wouldn't miss this thrill for anything.

Meet Me Tonight in Dreamland
